BROOK'S FLIVVER PLANE IS WASHED ASHORE

PICKED UP AT MELBOURNE ON FLORIDA COAST

BODY OF AVIATOR NOT FOUND IN WRECKAGE, MOTORCYCLE
POLICEMAN REPORTS

RESCUE BOATS CENTER AT POINT AND DRAG SEA FOR BODY

Melbourne, Fla., Feb. 27.—(UP)—The "divver" airplane piloted by Harry Brooks, Ford flier, which plunged into the sea Saturday, was washed ashore 16 miles south of here early today, according to information reaching Melbourne police.

Motorcycle Policeman Flusher, patrolling the beach south of here reported by telephone he found the wrecked plane and that the body of Brooks was not in it.

A large truck was sent from Melbourne on Flusher's advice. It was planned to bring the wreckage here.

Rescue boats converged in the vicinity and plans were made to drag the sea near where the plane came ashore, for Brooks' body.

Flusher, on night patrol of the beach, said he came upon the wrecked plane at 2:30 A. M. The breakers had flung it high and dry he reported.

NOT A TRACE OF YOUNG AVIATOR

Melbourne, Fla., Feb. 27.—The wreckage of Harry Brooks' famous "divver" plane found in the breakers 16 miles south of here today, failed to yield a trace of the missing Ford pilot who left Titusville Saturday, southbound in his tiny craft.

The diminutive plane in which Brooks last week flew from Detroit to Titusville, the longest non-stop flight of a plane of its kind, was totally wrecked. A wing was missing. A truck brought the wreckage to Melbourne today.

It was believed from the appearance of the wreckage washed ashore during the night after it had been discovered by an airplane pilot, that Brooks had been either thrown clear of the craft when it plunged or else had freed himself and drowned in an attempt to swim ashore.

Patrols of Boy Scouts searched the long stretch of beach south of Melbourne today while fishing boats searched off shore near where the plane was found, for Brooks' body.

Melbourne, Fla., Feb. 27.—Rescue boats will put out through the choppy Atlantic waters today in an effort to reclaim the tiny "divver" airplane in which Harry Brooks plunged into the sea Saturday.

The plane was sighted, tossing about in a rough sea about two miles from land Sunday, but boats were unable to approach it owing to the high breakers.

It was undetermined whether Brooks' body was still in the plane. The tiny plane, which Brooks was flying from Titusville to southern Florida, dropped into the sea late Saturday.

A few spectators saw it whirl overhead, then turn and go into a dive into the ocean. An alarm was sounded immediately.

For hours, however, no trace could be found of the airplane or its daring pilot. Yesterday afternoon George Rummel and Medos Gravelle, in a Rogers Airline seaplane, saw the wreckage being tossed about by the high waves.

They were unable to land and after circling over the wreckage for some time, returned to shore and announced they had found the plane. Coast guard stations at Fort Lauderdale and Fort Pierce were advised to send rescue boats as the only ones here had too great a draft to enter the inlet.

But the high waves prevented approach of boats yesterday and last night rescue efforts were abandoned until dawn.

The plan was to drag the wrecked plane to Sebastian and there examine it to see if Brooks' body would be found. In case it was not found, a search for the aviator would be started immediately.

Brooks was one of the best known aviators in the country. He had an enviable record and was chief pilot

5 OF 7 MAIL BANDITS ARE UNDER ARREST

POLICE OF CHICAGO REPORT
$17,000 OF STOLEN MONEY
RECOVERED

TWO MEN, ALLEGED LEADERS,
MADE CONFESSIONS,
POLICE SAY

Chicago, Feb. 27.—(UP)—Five of the seven bandits who dynamited the mail car of a Grand Trunk train at Evergreen Park Saturday and escaped with $132,000, were under arrest today and police reported that more than $17,000 of the money had been recovered.

Two men, William Donovan and Charles "Limly" Cleaver, alleged leaders of the robbery, made complete confessions, police said.

In addition to the five men held as actual participants in the sensational robbery, six men and six women were arrested in connection with the plot and distribution of the loot.

The arrests in the Saturday robbery and subsequent statements of the suspects, police declared, solved the recent $80,000 robbery at Ravenswood National bank, Chicago, and several other bank robberies.

Arrest of other participants in the robbery and the recovery of the remainder of the $132,000 will be accomplished within twenty-four hours, Deputy Police Commissioner William E. O'Connor predicted.

NEW YORKER SWALLOWED BY OCEAN, FLEW TO SEA TO GREET SWEETHEART

New York, Feb. 27.—(UP)—Two men who flew out to sea to greet a girl who was coming home aboard a trans-Atlantic liner were believed to have been swallowed up by the ocean today.

Walter Hendricks, Curtiss field airplane pilot, undertook the daring flight Saturday at the request of a man who said his sweetheart was aboard one of the inbound liners. He was ready to pay a fancy price for the privilege of waving a greeting to her from the air.

Officials at Curtiss Field said the deal for the trip was made privately between Hendricks and the unknown passenger. No one could be found who had learned the details of the projected flight and it was not known what ship the two men had flown out to meet.

When the Waco 10 airplane in which Hendricks and his Romeo-passenger were flying did not return to its base here Sunday, a search was started. All day coast guard boats and airplanes from Curtiss Field continued the hunt without success.

Today the search was resumed but coast guardsmen said there was little likelihood of saving the two men in event their plane had plunged into the sea. Near-zero temperatures prevailed over the Atlantic.

Tense Feeling Exists in Political Area As Result of Austrian Chancellor's Criticisms

ITALIAN ENVOY SUMMONED TO RETURN HOME

ITALIAN PAPERS EMPHASIZE THAT ITALY HAS RECOGNIZED
NO TYROL QUESTION

KEENEST SUSPENSE AWAITS AN-NOUNCEMENT OF PREMIER MUSSOLINI

Rome, Feb. 27.—(UP)—A tense feeling continued in political circles today as result of the Austrian incident—whereby Chancellor Seipel criticized fascist policies in the Upper Adige, once Austrian South Tyrol, thereby bringing a summoning of the Italian Minister to Austria, to Rome.

Editorials today emphasized that Italy had recognized no such thing as a Tyrol question.

The keenest suspense was felt as the nation awaited Premier Mussolini's presentation of the national course, to the chamber today.

Premier Mussolini conferred lengthily during the morning with Signor Auriti, the Italian minister to Austria, whose departure from Vienna was reported to have followed recall orders.

All tickets for the chamber galleries were taken early in the day in the hope that the premier would make an important pronouncement.

The calling of the Italian minister, Giacinto Auriti, to Rome, met general approval here and was considered a recall. It was believed that the calling of Auriti to Rome was taken by Premier Mussolini to show a general disapproval of Chancellor Seipel's remarks. The attitude of the Austrian chancellor is catalogued as "a grave error."

It seemed likely today that Auriti would remain in Italy, creating a suspension of diplomatic relations until Mussolini was fully satisfied.

Many here criticize the Vienna policy as "Lilliputian, byzantine and sophist." It was stressed that Italy had shown the most friendly attitude towards Austria, especially in assisting that nation towards rehabilitation of the country's economic and financial situation.

The Seipel incident, therefore, in many circles is regarded as "small thanks."

RE-OPEN FEUD OVER RECOGNIZING FIRST AIRPLANE

ORVILLE WRIGHT STARTS CON-
TROVERSY WITH SMITHSON-
IAN INSTITUTE

SURVIVING BROTHER OF INVEN-
TORS HAS ARTICLE IN U. S.
AIR SERVICE'S MAGAZINE

Washington, Feb. 27.—(UP)—Orville Wright has re-opened the old feud with the Smithsonian Institute over the recognition of the first airplane.

In an article written in the U. S. air service's magazine published today, the surviving brother of the famous pair of inventors said he has just sent the machine which flew at Kitty Hawk, N. C., in 1903, to the Science Museum, London, "because of the hostile and unfair attitude shown towards us by the officials of the Smithsonian."

Wright charged Smithsonian officials with trying to give credit for devising the first machine "capable of flying" to Professor Langley, the late secretary of the institution. As long as Prof. Langley was alive, Wright said, the relations between the Wrights and the institution were friendly.

The Smithsonian's recognition of the Langley machine, which failed to leave the ground on its first attempt before the Wright flight, was based on a flight by Glenn Curtiss, Wright charged that the Smithsonian published "false" and misleading reports of Curtiss' tests of the Langley machine, leading people to believe that the original Langley machine which had failed to fly in 1903, had been flown successfully at Hammondsport in 1914 "without material change."

Wright asserted the machine had been altered a great deal before it actually flew.

Langley's published work on aerodynamics, Wright said, was not trusted by the Wright brothers, who devised their 1903 machine "entirely on our own specific tables and none other. Nevertheless, he said, the Smithsonian after the 1914 flight, exhibited the Langley machine as "the first man-carrying aeroplane in the history of the world capable of sustained free flight."

"In spite of this long continued campaign of detraction," Wright said, "for years I kept silent with the thought that any one investigating would find the facts and would expose them. I had thought that truth eventually must prevail, but I have found silent proof cannot withstand error aided by continued propaganda."

Sen. Bingham, republican, Connecticut, and Rep. Warren, democrat, North Carolina, have suggested to Wright that the machine be brought back to this country to be placed in a proposed memorial at Kitty Hawk, plans for which are now before congress. Meanwhile it was learned that a proposal by a special cabinet commission that the Kitty Hawk memorial consist of a coast guard lighthouse station has been disapproved by the fine arts commission as inappropriate.

CHAIN STORE COMPETITION AT PLAINVIEW

NEBRASKA TOWN MERCHANTS
TIGHTEN UP ON "STRICTLY CASH" BASIS

CLAIM IT IS THE ONLY WAY TO MEET NEW COMERS IN BUSI-NESS FIELD

Plainview, Neb., Feb. 27.—(UP)—To meet the competition of one chain store which had entered Plainview, and hold out others which were threatening to come in, the general merchandise stores have for a little more than two weeks been doing business on a "strictly cash" basis.

Martin Taylor, president of the Commercial Club and cashier of the First National Bank, said today it was too early to tell just what the effect of the new order of merchandising would be, but that the merchants themselves appear enthusiastic in their praise of the new system.

"Strictly cash" means just that," Taylor told the United Press. "Not a penny's worth of goods has left two of these four big stores without the cash since the agreement was reached. It is said that a very, very few 'favored customers' obtained brief credit at the other two, but even at those the situation is practically the same."

"What is the reason for the 'strictly cash' crusade?" the banker was asked by the United Press. "Chain stores," was the prompt reply. "We have had several reasons given by the merchants themselves, but the chain stores have forced the issue. The merchants feel that if they are to sell the major portion of goods to buyers in and around Plainview—and these four stores have sold the major portion in the past—they must sell on a cash basis, for only in that way can they meet the competition of chain store prices."

"How do the women like it?" "It's all the same to them. Instead of paying 30 days after purchase, they buy coupon books in advance. In fact, they seem to like it even better, because of reduced retail prices."

"What has been the effect on business?" "I have talked personally with two of the 'cash only' merchants, and both say they have seen no appreciable change in the gross sales. They believe it is too early to make an accurate prediction, but they are confident it is going to work an improvement in business conditions."

"If this works in Plainview, will it work in other localities?" "It strictly cash business proves satisfactory in Plainview it may mark the beginning of the end of credit business in all towns and cities. This community has no problems peculiar to itself."

Taylor and others in Plainview believe it will take at least a month to determine whether the experiment in strictly cash merchandise is a success or failure, and "would prefer in the meantime to make only limited comments on it."

2 WORKMEN ARE KILLED, 4 HURT, TANK EXPLODES

BLAST ROCKS HALF OF CITY OF TOLEDO, OHIO, HEARD
FOR MILES

FIRE WHICH FOLLOWED EXPLO-SION IS STILL RAGING
TODAY

Toledo, O., Feb. 27.—(UP)—Two workmen were killed, and four were injured when a ten thousand gallon tank of gasoline exploded at the Sun Oil Company plant here during the night.

The blast rocked half of Toledo and was heard for miles. Fire which followed the explosion, was still raging early today and two lesser detonations menaced the lives of firemen who fought the blaze.

The explosion was caused when gasoline seeping through the bottom of the tank became ignited. Flames, fanned by a high wind, shot hundreds of feet in the air, imperiling firemen who fought to save eight other tanks containing machine gun oil.

Frank Kreuse, 50, was killed outright. Verne L. Sinclair, 29, died in a hospital. Kreuse's body was charred almost beyond recognition.

None of the injured will die, it was believed.

The explosion caused a temporary panic among nearby residents whose houses rocked on their foundations. Scores of terror stricken persons ran into the streets.

The blaze was one of the most spectacular seen here in years. Thousands of persons gathered to watch it.

GIANT NAVY DIRIGIBLE ON LONG FLIGHT

"LOS ANGELES" PASSED CUBA
ON WAY FROM LAKEHURST
TO PANAMA

WEATHER CONDITIONS GOOD, IS MAKING 60 MILES AN HOUR

Washington, Feb. 27.—(UP)—The giant navy dirigible Los Angeles passed Cuba this morning from Lakehurst, N. J., to France Field, Panama Canal Zone, on a non-stop flight.

A radio message to naval headquarters here at 6:40 A. M. said the giant silver craft had just passed Cuba and was heading south, expecting to reach the Zone by 4 P. M.

The Los Angeles, which left Lakehurst, N. J., at 6:15 A. M. yesterday on its longest single flight since crossing the Atlantic from Germany, reported weather conditions good. It was making close to 60 miles an hour.

All through the early morning hours, since passing over Nassau, Bahamas, at 1:15 A. M., the radio operator had sent personal greetings at short intervals to a headquarters operator here.

The message at 6:40 was in code. It came from Lieut. Commander Rosendahl and indicated he saw no need for stopping at Guanacayaba Bay, Cuba, where the naval tender Patoaka awaited with a mooring mast.

MORE THAN 500 PROHIBITION LEADERS GATHER

MANY CONGRESSMEN ACCEPT
INVITATIONS TO MEET TO-MORROW AT WASHINGTON

DRY LEADERS SEEK MOST EX-PLICIT STATEMENTS IN PARTY PLATFORMS

Washington, Feb. 27.—(UP)—Prohibition forces gathered here today in preparation for a new offensive in the drive for strong enforcement planks in 1928 party platforms.

More than 500 dry leaders and many congressmen have accepted invitations for a conference tomorrow when resolutions urging nomination of dry candidates and platform commitments will be voted on.

While gratified by declarations drawn from republican candidates by the Borah letter, dry leaders planned to fight for even more explicit statements in the party platforms.

The conference, it was announced, will seek "clear, unmistakable, aggressive expressions by political conventions upon prohibition enforcement and dry presidential candidates."

Indications were that the militant dries are not altogether satisfied with the law-enforcement pledges made by four leading republican candidates recently, and intend to carry their fight into the convention. Nothing less than definite enforcement planks will be suitable to the embattled prohibitionists, it was declared.

Viewing Hoover's response to the Borah questionnaire, in which the commerce secretary opposed repeal of the 18th amendment, as satisfactory so far as it went, Dr. F. Scott McBride, general superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League, said he hoped for further clarification of Hoover's views during the campaign.

Hoover's statement will probably be amplified when he touches upon the critical questions concerning legalizing beer and wines and the wets' suggestion that the constitution be nullified by permitting each state to determine whether it will enforce the 18th amendment properly, partially, or not at all," McBride said.

The call for tomorrow's conference was signed by numerous prominent individuals in all parts of the country who are not directly connected with temperance organizations. Influential dries throughout the nation, the call said, are prepared to join with prohibition organizations in a "national offensive" movement during the campaign year.

Among those signing the call were Dr. S. Parkes Cadman, Dr. Ray Lyman Wilbur, Dr. Mary E. Woolley, Canon Gilbert, John A. Lapp, Chicago; Bishop Manning, Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, Irving Fisher and Mrs. John D. Sherman. Speakers will include Bishop William F. Anderson of Boston, Bishop James E. Freeman, Washington, Dr. Cadman and Bishop James Cannon, Jr., Washington.

Bishop William F. McDowell of Washington will preside.

Police believe that one of the robbers was shot during the gun battle. The automobile in which the robbers escaped was found by police and the interior of the car was blood-stained.

CHAIN STORE COMPETITION AT PLAINVIEW

NEBRASKA TOWN MERCHANTS TIGHTEN UP ON "STRICTLY CASH" BASIS

Plainview, Neb., Feb. 27.—(UP)—To meet the competition of one chain store which had entered Plainview, and hold out others which were threatening to come in, the general merchandise stores have for a little more than two weeks been doing business on a "strictly cash" basis.

"What is the reason for the 'strictly cash' crusade?" the banker was asked by the United Press.

"Chain stores," was the prompt reply. "We have had several reasons given by the merchants themselves, but the chain stores have forced the issue. The merchants feel that if they are to sell the major portion of goods to buyers in and around Plainview—and these four stores have sold the major portion in the past—they must sell on a cash basis, for only in that way can they meet the competition of chain store prices."

"How do the women like it?" "It's all the same to them. Instead of paying 30 days after purchase, they buy coupon books in advance. In fact, they seem to like it even better, because of reduced retail prices."

"What has been the effect on business?"

"I have talked personally with two of the 'cash only' merchants, and both say they have seen no appreciable change in the gross sales. They believe it is too early to make an accurate prediction, but they are confident it is going to work an improvement in business conditions."

"If this works in Plainview, will it work in other localities?" "It strictly cash business proves satisfactory in Plainview it may mark the beginning of the end of credit business in all towns and cities. This community has no problems peculiar to itself."

Taylor and others in Plainview believe it will take at least a month to determine whether the experiment in strictly cash merchandise is a success or failure, and "would prefer in the meantime to make only limited comments on it."

2 WORKMEN ARE KILLED, 4 HURT, TANK EXPLODES

BLAST ROCKS HALF OF CITY OF TOLEDO, OHIO, HEARD FOR MILES

FIRE WHICH FOLLOWED EXPLO- SION IS STILL RAGING TODAY

Toledo, O., Feb. 27.—(UP)—Two workmen were killed, and four were injured when a ten thousand gallon tank of gasoline exploded at the Sun Oil Company plant here during the night.

The blast rocked half of Toledo and was heard for miles. Fire which followed the explosion, was still raging early today and two lesser detonations menaced the lives of firemen who fought the blaze.

The explosion was caused when gasoline seeping through the bottom of the tank became ignited. Flames, fanned by a high wind, shot hundreds of feet in the air, imperiling firemen who fought to save eight other tanks containing machine gun oil.

Frank Kreuse, 50, was killed outright. Verne L. Sinclair, 29, died in a hospital. Kreuse's body was charred almost beyond recognition.

None of the injured will die, it was believed.

The explosion caused a temporary panic among nearby residents whose houses rocked on their foundations. Scores of terror stricken persons ran into the streets.

The blaze was one of the most spectacular seen here in years. Thousands of persons gathered to watch it.

GIANT NAVY DIRIGIBLE ON LONG FLIGHT

"LOS ANGELES" PASSED CUBA ON WAY FROM LAKEHURST TO PANAMA

WEATHER CONDITIONS GOOD, IS MAKING 60 MILES AN HOUR

Washington, Feb. 27.—(UP)—The giant navy dirigible Los Angeles passed Cuba this morning from Lakehurst, N. J., to France Field, Panama Canal Zone, on a non-stop flight.

A radio message to naval headquarters here at 6:40 A. M. said the giant silver craft had just passed Cuba and was heading south, expecting to reach the Zone by 4 P. M.

The Los Angeles, which left Lakehurst, N. J., at 6:15 A. M. yesterday on its longest single flight since crossing the Atlantic from Germany, reported weather conditions good. It was making close to 60 miles an hour.

All through the early morning hours, since passing over Nassau, Bahamas, at 1:15 A. M., the radio operator had sent personal greetings at short intervals to a headquarters operator here.

The message at 6:40 was in code. It came from Lieut. Commander Rosendahl and indicated he saw no need for stopping at Guanacayaba Bay, Cuba, where the naval tender Pataoka awaited with a mooring mast.

MORE THAN 500 PROHIBITION LEADERS GATHER

MANY CONGRESSMEN ACCEPT INVITATIONS TO MEET TO- MORROW AT WASHINGTON

DRY LEADERS SEEK MOST EX- PLICIT STATEMENTS IN PARTY PLATFORMS

Washington, Feb. 27.—(UP)—Prohibition forces gathered here today in preparation for a new offensive in the drive for strong enforcement planks in 1928 party platforms.

More than 500 dry leaders and many congressmen have accepted invitations for a conference tomorrow when resolutions urging nomination of dry candidates and platform commitments will be voted on.

While gratified by declarations drawn from republican candidates by the Borah letter, dry leaders planned to fight for even more explicit statements in the party platforms.

The conference, it was announced, will seek "clear, unmistakable, aggressive expressions by political conventions upon prohibition enforcement and dry presidential candidates."

Indications were that the militant dries are not altogether satisfied with the law-enforcement pledges made by four leading republican candidates recently, and intend to carry their fight into the convention. Nothing less than definite enforcement planks will be suitable to the embittered prohibitionists, it was declared.

Viewing Hoover's response to the Borah questionnaire, in which the commerce secretary opposed repeal of the 18th amendment, as satisfactory so far as it went, Dr. F. Scott McBride, general superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League, said he hoped for further clarification of Hoover's views during the campaign.

Hoover's statement will probably be amplified when he touches upon the critical questions concerning legalizing beer and wines and the wets' suggestion that the constitution be nullified by permitting each state to determine whether it will enforce the 18th amendment properly, partially, or not at all," McBride said.

The call for tomorrow's conference was signed by numerous prominent individuals in all parts of the country who are not directly connected with temperance organizations. Influential dries throughout the nation, the call said, are prepared to join with prohibition organizations in a "national offensive" movement during the campaign year.

Among those signing the call were Dr. S. Parkes Cadman, Dr. Ray Lyman Wilbur, Dr. Mary E. Wooley, Cannot Gilbert, John A. Lapp, Chicago; Bishop Manning, Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, Irving Fisher and Mrs. John D. Sherman. Speakers will include Bishop William F. Anderson of Boston, Bishop James E. Freeman, Washington, Dr. Cadman and Bishop James Cannon, Jr., Washington.

Bishop William F. McDowell of Washington will preside.

OFFICER SHOT DOWN AS HE FRUSTRATED ROBBERY AT ST. PAUL

St. Paul, Minn., Feb. 27.—(UP)—Edwin J. Hoeller, patrolman, was wounded in an attempted jewelry store robbery here Sunday. His condition is not serious.

He was shot when he approached four men who were attempting to break into the Cardozo jewelry store. The robbers escaped, but police later arrested a man who said he was Roy Condon of Des Moines.

Police believe that one of the robbers was shot during the gun battle. The automobile in which the robbers escaped was found by police and the interior of the car was blood-smeared.

Meetings Conducted to Ascertain Desire of Community Regarding Scouting

By Dr. R. A. Beise

Over fifty men have met together during the past few weeks in a series of meetings in an effort to find out the actual desire of the men of Brainerd as to whether Scouting should be continued or dropped. A real crisis arose at the time of our annual meeting and the situation developed that nobody was willing to take the presidency of the council because they were not sure whether there were men vitally interested enough to assist them in putting it across.

Five years ago, scouting was started with tremendous impetus. Large sums of money were raised because of the initial enthusiasm which had been created. Each year since then fewer men have taken an active part and less money has been raised as a result, until today, even with our smaller budget, it has been a great effort to complete the drive. The reason for this difficulty has not been, however, so much a difficulty in getting the money as the difficulty to get men to solicit.

The very unique feature of the whole development is the fact that during the past two years scouting has more than tripled in enrollment caused possibly by the fact that a very splendid type of man has volunteered as scout leaders. The main thing that has developed in these meetings has been the fact that men must not only give their money to the development of scouting but must also devote some of their time. During the past two years a few men have earnestly devoted their time in placing the administration on a sound and extremely economical basis. This has been accomplished in two ways, first by extending the council to take in more territory thereby decreasing the proportionate part of the budget that Brainerd must raise and secondly, by curtailment in the expenditure of funds until today the budget is reduced to the lowest possible point for efficient operation. Scouting is too big a job for any one man to handle; therefore, it has been decided that unless a much larger group of representative Brainerd men are ready to stand behind the president, take the responsibility of financing and other necessary committee appointments, Brainerd can no longer maintain the distinction of being a headquarters city for the Boy Scout movement.

These meetings have been held in order to ascertain the desire of the community regarding scouting as to whether the scout program was workable in the city of Brainerd. There has been great concern over the possibility of discontinuing because it is felt that scouting admirably serves the boyhood of the country in developing useful, participating boys of character trained for citizenship, always prepared to do a good turn. A scout in passing a safety first requirement for second class rank gave this report: "There was no gutter on the eaves over the back steps and I noticed that in warm weather it caused water to drip there forming ice. As these steps led to the woodshed and also to the pump, I was afraid that my mother or someone might fall and hurt themselves so I went downtown and bought a dime's worth of rock salt and sprinkled it over the steps and also a path leading to the pump."

A THREE DAYS' COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

This melted the ice away and I put some sand on it so that there is no chance of anyone falling now." Another instance of a scout being prepared is this recent happening: A farmer, the father of a scout, was injured by a falling tree which crushed his hand and wrist causing him to lose considerable blood. The scout had learned some first aid at troop meeting and immediately applied a tourniquet before taking him to town to the doctor. We are informed by this physician that had the scout not applied the tourniquet and stopping the flow of blood, his father would doubtless have bled to death before getting to town.

Friday evening at Archer's Cafe at 6 o'clock, thirty-seven men gathered together all keenly interested in devising means of putting scouting on a firmer and permanent basis. After the majority had expressed their willingness to aid in whatever way possible, the following resolution was passed: Resolved that all here present believe thoroughly in the value of the Boy Scout movement and that we are prepared to stand together and do what we can as individuals to maintain the organization and raise the necessary funds for its maintenance. To this end, be it further resolved that the undersigned here present stand pledged to support the president in every way, especially by accepting committee appointments and assigned tasks cheerfully and by fulfilling them to the best of their ability. This resolution was signed by a large group of men.

We all felt confident now that the people of Brainerd will back up this committee and never again will scouting, which has done so much for us in the past, from which we can expect more in the future, lag for public opinion and support. The parents of boys can possibly do more than all the rest of us put together by taking an interest in their son's scout career and encourage him to develop in himself the high ideals of the scout oath and law.

WE ARE ALL BENEFITED

ACCORDING to the information gathered by Commissioner Babcock, Minnesota has 31,000 miles of improved roads—town, county and trunk—which improvement ranges from grading, graveling to tarvia and concrete. Of the 7,000 miles of trunk highways, over 6,000 miles have been improved of which less than a thousand have been paved. As against the 6,000 plus trunk roads improved, there were some 24,000 miles of town and county roads that have been improved.

Anyone travelling over Minnesota in the summer and fall months will find very passable roads in every section—a wonderful advancement in good roads betterment in the past few years.

The improvement of these 24,000 miles of county roads was greatly aided by the state taking over the trunk highways, carrying a very large part of the travel, the total burden of building and maintenance being passed over to owners of motor vehicles. All the revenue from the one mill state tax and county road tax, most of which is paid by cities and villages, goes on the auxiliary roads.

The benefit is universal.

When a man holding a high position makes the statement that the farmers are getting no benefit from the trunk roads, he is shy on facts.

Before the adoption of the trunk highway system, nearly all the tax money was spent on the main roads, and very little on what are now the auxiliary highways.

Now the farmer roads get all the taxes, state, city, county and townships.

It is a system that is working out for the benefit of the greatest number.

Had the old system remained, the county and town roads would be in the same poor condition as formerly.

What is the sense in saying that with 31,000 miles of improved roads, the only ones benefited are city folks?

The one weakness in the trunk plan is the wasting of a million dollars or more a year on gravel roads that should be paved.

Dolores Costello in "OLD SAN FRANCISCO" is a Warner Bros. picturization of this novel.

SYNOPSIS

Buckwell, San Francisco's boss politician, with lawyer, Brandon, attempted to get possession of Vasquez ranch, occupied by Vasquez and his beautiful granddaughter Dolores. Their plot is discovered by Terry, Brandon's nephew, who loves Dolores. Terry and Dolores have misunderstanding. Dolores falls into Buckwell's clutches but is saved by Terry. Buckwell uses force to oust Vasquez, but is defeated. He tries guile, but Vasquez heeds Terry's warning and confronts Buckwell. The aged Spaniard dies from stroke caused by Buckwell's threats. Dolores, left alone, discovers that Buckwell is Chinaman in disguise. She plans to avenge her grandfather's death. Tells Terry, Buckwell is Chinaman.

"And that would be a crime!" he objected quickly. "Your hair is too splendid to be covered. No, on second thought, I love you most without anything to cover your hair." But the look in his eyes indicated that if she wore a mused sunbonnet he would love her just the same. Dolores was slightly abashed by such ardent admiration, although she found herself wanting him to say loverlike words and hold her hand forever. Nothing else could keep back the sob and bring momentary forgetfulness of the fact that her grandfather was dead. "The Chinamen we are going to into each other's. "I could not have lived through the last few days if it had not been for you." "God bless you, my darling. But when will you marry me?"

"Almost any time, Terry. I don't think it would be disrespectful to grandfather's memory. It is so lonely at the ranch alone, and if Senor Buckwell takes it away from me I wouldn't know what to do."

"Look here!" commanded Terry with a fine show of sternness, "are you going to marry me just for the sake of having a roof over your head?"

"You know I am not," replied Dolores with dignity. "I am going to marry you because I love you." And she looked at him with such an adorably sweet expression that he wanted to crush her in his arms and never let her go.

"That is the first time you have said it, sweetheart! Glory, but it sounds great!"

At this point in their conversation they drew up to the entrance of Lu Fong's Cafe. Their quest for the head of the Inner Circle had led them to the threshold of as dangerously famous a haunt as existed within the Golden Gate. "Wait until we return," Terry instructed the driver.

They entered the dimly lighted cafe.

Dolores appeared as out of place as an exquisite orchid in a rank weed patch. She instinctively recoiled. Terry took her arm reassuringly. "Don't worry, dear; we will not have to stay here long. Lu Fong has an office some place in the building. I will find out how we get to him."

Still holding her protectively by the arm, Terry beckoned to a waiter. As the white aproned servitor approached Terry said, "We must see Lu Fong at once; it is important."

The waiter stuck his shiny black tray under his arm and eyed Dolores with interest. "I'll pass on the word. I don't know much about the inner workings of the place myself. Take a seat while you're waiting!" and, indicating a small table near the doorway, he went out whistling.

Dolores looked slowly around the enormous cafe room. It was filled with a crowd representing almost every nationality and every walk of life. Some had come because it was a habit, others out of curiosity. The cafe was a good place in which to indulge one's appetites, no matter of what nature they chanced to be. Chinese waiters were scurrying about serving food.

One side of the room was lined with partially secluded booths, from which issued either no sound at all or a volume of voices. The opposite wall was backed with French plate mirrors and an elaborate rosewood bar. It was without a doubt the most active section of the entire room. Although Lu Fong's was a Chinese cafe, tea was seldom ordered. Plain American beer and whisky were the popular beverages, and they were served in great profusion. Whisky was bought by the barrel and was a tremendous source of graft for some of the white bosses.

The cafe bar was a room of many doors. To all who gave the matter their consideration it was easily observed that one door never opened into the room. It was an exit only, but bore no label. What happened to the people who crossed its threshold at rare intervals was a source of much speculation. Those who came out, by another exit, never told of their experiences, while still others never reappeared to give an account of themselves. It led to a certain back room and from thence down, down into the maze of underground passages where one was as lost as in the labyrinth of Corinth without a guide.

Singing entertainers, both men and women, worked their way through the aisles or paused at a table now and then to help along the general hilarity of the evening, which had not yet reached its height.

Dolores shuddered and turned away as she saw a young white girl having dinner with an apparently wealthy Chinese merchant. There was a lustful gleam in the man's eyes, and the girl put her hand in his with a significant look and calmed laugh that meant their evening together was just beginning.

It reminded Dolores of her encounter with Buckwell, and she wondered how any girl could endure the society of a Chinaman. Her three trips to the Barbary Coast were awakening her mind to life as it was lived by people who did not care or whose ideals were of an entirely different calibre from her own.

Looking away from the ill suited couple, Dolores noticed a man—all alone at a neighboring table. He was laughing and going through the motions of making an imaginary something—animal perhaps—sit up and jump over his finger. She wondered why his face should be so white and pinched.

ESCAPING MURDER, NEAR VICTIM IS HIMSELF ARRESTED

St. Paul, Feb. 27.—(UP)—Escaping murder, the almost victim called the police and thereby got himself arrested.

James Cutter was shot at by Sastiano Sapio.

Sapio said Cutter tried to break into his home.

Cutter, after the first fright at being a near target, waxed indignant and called police.

Sapio told his story and was not arrested.

Cutter didn't fare as well. He was charged with being drunk and disorderly, and for fifteen days he will be safe from bullets within the confines of the workhouse walls.

BAD LUCK FLIES WITH YANKEE AIRMEN OVER WEEK END

Bad luck flew with American airmen over the week-end.

Three flyers were believed to have been lost in the Atlantic and one was killed and six were injured when three planes crashed on land.

Little hope was left for Harry Brooks whose tiny "diver" airplane dived into the sea off Melbourne, Fla., Saturday night.

Walter Hendricks took an unknown passenger out to sea from Curtiss Field, L. I., to greet a girl who was coming to New York aboard a trans-Atlantic liner and failed to return. Ships and airplanes are searching for them.

S. N. Craig of Beaver, Pa., a passenger, was killed and Frank Yager, pilot, was badly hurt when a trans-continental air mail plane was wrecked Sunday near Marquette, Neb.

Otha Eddleman, Bert McIntyre and C. A. Powell were critically injured when their airplane crashed Sunday night at McCamey, Calif.

John McMillan suffered a fractured leg and S. P. Gray escaped with bruises when their Standard biplane crashed at Lambert Field, St. Louis.

CHEWING GUM CHAMPIONSHIP NOW 115 STICKS

St. Paul, Minn., Feb. 27.—(UP)—Robert Erler, 17-year-old office boy, and chewing gum champion of the world for less than a day said today he was ready to meet Bill Kenafick, 17, high school student in a masticating match this week.

Erler chewed 111 sticks of gum, beating by one stick a record held by Vernon Lee of Fergus Falls, Minn. Within five hours after Erler had been proclaimed the world's champion, Kenafick and his manager were at work for an attempted record meet.

Shortly before midnight Saturday officials were called and Kenafick started to work. He chewed 115 sticks with ease.

Erler and Kenafick are unknown to one another.

The value of the wad of gum taken from the youth's mouth was a matter of speculation today. One storekeeper offered several dollars for the wad which is slightly smaller than a baseball, declaring he wanted it for exhibition purposes.

Granite City, Ill., Feb. 27.—(UP)—Five persons were killed instantly here yesterday when an Illinois electric train collided with an automobile.

The dead: Durant Douglas, 30; his wife, Anna, 28; Robert Craig, 40; Louis Hubbard, 50, and Frank Oettel, 28. All of the victims resided in Glen Carbon, Ill.

"We must see Lu Fong at once; it is important."

see," asked Dolores curiously, "what will they do to Senor Buckwell?"

"I don't know just what, but they will make it pretty uncomfortable for him. In fact, it will be the last of Buckwell as a power in Frisco."

"It should be! He can't take the ranch away from us now, can he?" It was a new and hopeful thought.

"There is nothing he can do unless he is locked up and under guard, and we know that he is trying to have the old Spanish grants declared invalid. By the way, I have not had a chance to tell you—my uncle is no longer doing Buckwell's legal work." There was a ring of pride in Terry's voice.

"Oh, Terry, I am glad," cried Dolores impulsively, more for his sake than her own, because she knew what a headache the combine had been to him. "What made him give it up?"

Her eyes searched his so trustfully that he could not lie.

"Why—why, I told about what a rotter Buckwell had been to you, and uncle also found out that Buckwell had double crossed him on a deal, so he said he was 'through.' I hope he meant it. I believe he did."

Again they rode on in silence. "You seem so far away," complained Terry from his corner of the carriage, "may I come nearer?"

Dolores was elusively desirable, and he was fearful of startling her.

"Yes—you may," she replied so faintly that if he had not already moved nearer he could not have heard.

She was uncomfortably happy. There is such a state when one is in love. She had never wanted Don Luis to even kiss her finger tips. She hated to have him call her "sweet Senorita" and he always did! She dreaded being left alone with him, and his sentimental flattery annoyed her. But with Terry it was different. She craved his touch and drank in his every word and gesture. She liked everything he did and said, and after they avenged her grandfather's death she would ask nothing more from life than to be with him.

It was what Terry wanted, too, and as the carriage drew into the radiance of San Francisco's lights he asked earnestly, "Dolores, when will you marry me?" then he hastened to add before she had time to answer, "Don't say later than a month or I can't stand it. I want you for my very own, dear—soon!"

"And I want you to have me!" replied Dolores. Their eyes melted

WE ARE ALL BENEFITED

ACCORDING to the information gathered by Commissioner Babcock, Minnesota has 31,000 miles of improved roads—town, county and trunk—which improvement ranges from grading, graveling to tarvia and concrete. Of the 7,000 miles of trunk highways, over 6,000 miles have been improved of which less than a thousand have been paved. As against the 6,000 plus trunk roads improved, there were some 24,000 miles of town and county roads that have been improved.

Anyone travelling over Minnesota in the summer and fall months will find very passable roads in every section—a wonderful advancement in good roads betterment in the past few years.

The improvement of these 24,000 miles of county roads was greatly aided by the state taking over the trunk highways, carrying a very large part of the travel, the total burden of building and maintenance being passed over to owners of motor vehicles. All the revenue from the one mill state tax and county road tax, most of which is paid by cities and villages, goes on the auxiliary roads.

The benefit is universal.

When a man holding a high position makes the statement that the farmers are getting no benefit from the trunk roads, he is shy on facts.

Before the adoption of the trunk highway system, nearly all the tax money was spent on the main roads, and very little on what are now the auxiliary highways.

Now the farmer roads get all the taxes, state, city, county and townships.

It is a system that is working out for the benefit of the greatest number.

Had the old system remained, the county and town roads would be in the same poor condition as formerly.

What is the sense in saying that with 31,000 miles of improved roads, the only ones benefited are city folks?

The one weakness in the trunk plan is the wasting of a million dollars or more a year on gravel roads that should be paved. —St. Cloud Journal-Press.

Dolores Costello in "OLD SAN FRANCISCO" is a Warner Bros. picturization of this novel.

SYNOPSIS

Buckwell, San Francisco's boss politician, with lawyer, Brandon, attempted to get possession of Vasquez ranch, occupied by Vasquez and his beautiful granddaughter Dolores. Their plot is discovered by Terry, Brandon's nephew, who loves Dolores. Terry and Dolores have misunderstanding. Dolores falls into Buckwell's clutches but is saved by Terry. Buckwell uses force to oust Vasquez, but is defeated. He tries guile, but Vasquez heads Terry's warning and confronts Buckwell. The aged Spaniard dies from stroke caused by Buckwell's threats. Dolores, left alone, discovers that Buckwell is Chinaman in disguise. She plans to avenge her grandfather's death. Tells Terry, Buckwell is Chinaman.

"And that would be a crime!" he objected quickly. "Your hair is too splendid to be covered. No, on second thought, I love you most without anything to cover your hair." But the look in his eyes indicated that if she wore a mused sunbonnet he would love her just the same.

Dolores was slightly abashed by such ardent admiration, although she found herself wanting him to say love-like words and hold her hand forever. Nothing else could keep back the sob and bring momentary forgetfulness of the fact that her grandfather was dead.

"The Chinamen we are going to into each other's. "I could not have lived through the last few days if it had not been for you."

"God bless you, my darling. But when will you marry me?"

"Almost any time, Terry. I don't think it would be disrespectful to grandfather's memory. It is so lonely at the ranch alone, and if Senor Buckwell takes it away from me I wouldn't know what to do."

"Look here!" commanded Terry with a fine show of sternness, "are you going to marry me just for the sake of having a roof over your head?"

"You know I am not," replied Dolores with dignity. "I am going to marry you because—I love you." And she looked at him with such an adorably sweet expression that he wanted to crush her in his arms and never let her go.

"That is the first time you have said it, sweetheart! Glory, but it sounds great!"

At this point in their conversation they drew up to the entrance of Lu Fong's Cafe. Their quest for the head of the Inner Circle had led them to the threshold of as dangerously famous a haunt as existed within the Golden Gate.

"Wait until we return," Terry instructed the driver.

They entered the dimly lighted cafe.

Dolores appeared as out of place as an exquisite orchid in a rank weed patch. She instinctively recoiled. Terry took her arm reassuringly.

"Don't worry, dear; we will not have to stay here long. Lu Fong has an office some place in the building. I will find out how we get to him."

The waiter stuck his shiny black tray under his arm and eyed Dolores with interest. "I'll pass on the word. I don't know much about the inner workings of the place myself. Take a seat while you're waiting!" and, indicating a small table near the doorway, he went out whistling.

Dolores looked slowly around the enormous cafe room. It was filled with a crowd representing almost every nationality and every walk of life. Some had come because it was a habit, others out of curiosity. The cafe was a good place in which to indulge one's appetite, no matter of what nature they chanced to be. Chinese waiters were scurrying about serving food.

One side of the room was lined with partially secluded booths, from which issued either no sound at all or a volume of voices. The opposite wall was backed with French plate mirrors and an elaborate rosewood bar. It was without a doubt the most active section of the entire room. Although Lu Fong's was a Chinese cafe, tea was seldom ordered. Plain American beer and whisky were the popular beverages, and they were served in great profusion. Whisky was bought by the barrel and was a tremendous source of graft for some of the white bosses.

The cafe bar was a room of many doors. To all who gave the matter their consideration it was easily observed that one door never opened into the room. It was an exit only, but bore no label. What happened to the people who crossed its threshold at rare intervals was a source of much speculation.

Those who came out, by another exit, never told of their experiences, while still others never reappeared to give an account of themselves. It led to a certain back room and from thence down, down into the maze of underground passages where one was as lost as in the labyrinth of Corinth without a guide.

"ANNE, WHAT'S HER NAME" PLAY TITLE

To be Presented Under Auspices
Lowell Parent-Teachers
on March 9

AT U. C. T. AUDITORIUM

Home Talent Play is a Three Act
Comedy With a
Prologue

The cast in the play "Anne, What's Her Name" to be given under the auspices of the Lowell P. T. A. on March 9, in the U. C. T. auditorium has advanced so far in its rehearsals that the orchestra is now practicing with them, and every thing is advancing nearer and nearer perfection.

This home talent play is a three act comedy with a prologue. The prologue takes place in Tony Wheat's room in Bachelor Inn, and is a conversation between Tony Wheat and his valet Burks. Mr. Wheat has had a misunderstanding with his sweetheart, Nancy Brown, and a scene with a dancing girl who loved him has threatened to commit suicide when he told her he loved Nancy Brown, and for all the excited Tony knew had succeeded in taking her life to his discomfort, as the police had followed him for hours and were still on his trail.

The first act takes place in Judge Bunby's house, an hour later when Tom gets in and is hiding until he gets a line-up from some of the members of the family through their conversation where he can get a suit of clothes until he gets a chance to escape the police. After changing his clothes, he is mistaken by his family for the cousin from Idaho whom they have not seen since a small child, and was expected that afternoon to come to comply with requirements of a strange will, and acts the part to perfection until the last act which takes place next morning in the same room where his identity is established and everything is straightened out.

The second act takes place in the same room and Mrs. Cora Cook takes the leading part as grandma, aged 82, who has come a long way to see her cousin from Idaho. She takes the role which is comical and pathetic so well that one would think she is a professional. There is a good chance for acting, and she makes the most of it.

There are five other teachers in the play who take their parts equally well, and the rest of the characters have been before the public in one way or another for some time. The play is a comedy mystery play for which a royalty was paid, and is full of comical situations, and excitement, so an enjoyable evening is assured. The case of characters is as follows:

Anthony Wheat (Tony), a victim of circumstances—G. H. Berkholder. Burks, his valet, faithful to the end—J. E. Crust.

Marjorie, a very modern young woman—Alta Holden.

Aunt Julia, the Judge's sister-in-law, Mrs. Elmer Forsberg Barbara, a flapper who flaps—Astrid Olsen.

GIVE MEDICINEMAN TRIBAL BURIAL

Kah-Gay-Be-Nais Laid to Rest With Food, Guns, Medicine in Historical Cemetery

Feasting, Dancing, Speeches, Included in Traditional Rites
at Mille Lacs

A mound stands out conspicuously in the snow covered Indian cemetery at the Mille Lacs reservation looking over the expansive lake. It is a recently covered grave, sheltered by a lean-to hewed from timbers and marks the last resting place of Kah-Gay-Be-Nais, one of the few remaining medicinemen of the tribe whose demise occurred last week.

Some years over 70, no one definitely knows, as records of his birth are vague, Kah-Gay-Be-Nais answered the summons of the great god of death and has gone to the happy hunting grounds, traditional heaven for all valiant Indians, renowned hunters and trappers, and tribe leaders.

Feasting, speeches, and dancing, taken part by the entire village were included in the solemn yet picturesque rites as the great medicineman was laid to rest amid the pompous ceremonies of the tribe.

Food, guns, and medicine, the property of the dead Indian, were placed in the grave to protect and sustain the medicineman in his journey through death.

Kah-Gay-Be-Nais was liked and respected by every member of the Mille Lacs tribe. He was noted for his hunting and trapping and his weird dances to drive the evil spirits away. He was born on the reservation and had lived there all his life. He saw the timber in its virgin state and the early entry of the white man who came to the shores of the lake, cut down the trees, and fished the lakes.

His grave is truly a noble resting place. The cemetery is over 200 years old and is the burial ground of 35 chiefs and tribesmen.

DELANEY MEETS TOM HEENEY THURSDAY

HEAVYWEIGHT PROBLEM SOLVED BY BLOWS, NOT WORDS

15-ROUND BOUT IS SCHEDULED FOR MADISON SQUARE GARDEN

DELANEY CARRIES DYNAMITE IN HIS GOOD RIGHT FIST

By FRANK GETTY
(United Press Sports Editor)

New York, Feb. 27. — Progress towards solution of the heavyweight problem will be made with blows instead of words next Thursday night. Debonair, dark-eyed Jack Delaney and rugged, freckled Tom Heenev meet in a scheduled 15-round bout at Madison Square Garden.

When it is over, we should know a little more about the probable identity of Gene Tunney's next opponent.

One of these two—the lithe, handsome French-Canadian or the rough and ready, good natured New Zealander—may be named to fight the champion in June.

Delaney has the better chance, if he can explode the dynamite he carries in his right hand upon the chin of the Antipodean.

A spectacular knockout such as ended the McLarnin-Terris bout last Friday night would catapult the former light heavyweight champion into the limelight in a manner which would make it inevitable for him to be awarded the try at the title.

If Heenev wins—and barring an accident he only can do so by wearing down the clever but none too rugged Delaney—it means that Tom must give either Sharkey or Risko a return match before Tex Rickard would feel justified in naming the New Zealander as challenger for the championship.

Heenev fought a disappointing draw with Sharkey and outpointed Risko by no very wide margin.

Expert opinion varies as to the outcome of next Thursday night's fight. There are some who maintain that the New Zealander is too strong for Delaney. They declare Jack never has beaten a really good heavyweight, which is true, and that Heenev will wear him down and beat him over the 15-round route.

It is true that the longer distance insisted upon by Rickard does not suit the French-Canadian. Delaney likes his fights short, if possible. Yet no one who watched him cut down Paul Berlenbach at the championship distance one autumn evening at Ebbets Field can say that Jack is without staying qualities.

Delaney's adherents believe that he is too clever for Heenev, a notoriously slow thinker. They hope that Jack will find an opening for that deadly right uppercut early in the fight. If he does, we will learn whether it is true that Tom cannot be knocked out.

The affair looks like a toss-up, from this distance. The men employ such different styles, their respective physiques are so dissimilar, that it is difficult to compare them.

Delaney lost to Risko and Jimmy Maloney. Heenev beat both gentlemen without a great deal of trouble. Heenev did better against Paolino than Delaney did. Heenev is a real heavyweight, while Delaney has constantly to pad himself to get above the light heavyweight limit.

It may be that Gene Tunney is not so dumb, after all. Four months ago, when asked whom he considered the best of a bad lot of heavyweight contenders, the champion replied: "Heenev."

He said he would rely on body punches to win.

THREE ALL STATE MEN FORM GRANITE CITY OFFENSIVE THREAT

LOCALS ESTABLISH RECORD BY CHALKING UP EIGHT VICTORIES

The deciding game of the Central Minnesota basketball league will be played here Wednesday evening when the Brainerd American Legion team meet the St. Cloud five at the B. H. S. gym.

A win for Brainerd will bring the championship to this city. Plays perfected in the past week will be used by the locals to bring this about.

The Granite City quint will furnish no little opposition. Three all state men, Engel, Hamilton, and Erickson, will prove a real threat to the locals.

St. Cloud turned the tables on the locals earlier in the season but since that time Brainerd has set up the record of being defeated only one in eight home games.

The game will be the last one of the season with exception to the city series.

Chicago, Feb. 27.—(U.P.)—The Big Ten conference basketball race entered its final fortnight today with three teams, Indiana, Purdue and Wisconsin tied for first place.

Purdue, topped from the lead by Wisconsin and later responsible for reducing Wisconsin, tonight was to meet Minnesota at Lafayette. The Gophers, in the cellar position, were not expected to offer great resistance to the speedy Boilermakers.

Indiana, risen to a tie for first through the divided victories of Wisconsin and Purdue, also was expected to win from Iowa in their game at Iowa City tonight.

DELANEY MEETS TOM HEENEY THURSDAY

HEAVYWEIGHT PROBLEM SOLVED BY BLOWS, NOT WORDS

15-ROUND BOUT IS SCHEDULED FOR MADISON SQUARE GARDEN

DELANEY CARRIES DYNAMITE IN HIS GOOD RIGHT FIST

By FRANK GETTY
(United Press Sports Editor)

New York, Feb. 27. — Progress towards solution of the heavyweight problem will be made with blows instead of words next Thursday night. Debonair, dark-eyed Jack Delaney and rugged, freckled Tom Heene meet in a scheduled 15-round bout at Madison Square Garden.

When it is over, we should know a little more about the probable identity of Gene Tunney's next opponent.

One of these two—the lithe, handsome French-Canadian or the rough and ready, good natured New Zealander—may be named to fight the champion in June.

Delaney has the better chance, if he can explode the dynamite he carries in his right hand upon the chin of the Antipodean.

A spectacular knockout such as ended the McLarnin-Terris bout last Friday night would catapult the former light heavyweight champion into the limelight in a manner which would make it inevitable for him to be awarded the try at the title.

If Heene wins—and barring an accident he only can do so by wearing down the clever but none too rugged Delaney—it means that Tom must give either Sharkey or Risko a return match before Tex Rickard would feel justified in naming the New Zealander as challenger for the championship.

Heene fought a disappointing draw with Sharkey and outpointed Risko by no very wide margin.

Expert opinion varies as to the outcome of next Thursday night's fight. There are some who maintain that the New Zealander is too strong for Delaney. They declare Jack never has beaten a really good heavyweight, which is true, and that Heene will wear him down and beat him over the 15-round route.

It is true that the longer distance insisted upon by Rickard does not suit the French-Canadian. Delaney likes his fights short, if possible. Yet no one who watched him cut down Paul Berlenbach at the championship distance one autumn evening at Ebbets Field can say that Jack is without staying qualities.

Delaney's adherents believe that he is too clever for Heene, a notoriously slow thinker. They hope that Jack will find an opening for that deadly right uppercut early in the fight. If he does, we will learn whether it is true that Tom cannot be knocked out.

The affair looks like a toss-up, from this distance. The men employ such different styles, their respective physiques are so dissimilar, that it is difficult to compare them.

Delaney lost to Risko and Jimmy Maloney. Heene beat both gentlemen without a great deal of trouble. Heene did better against Paolino than Delaney did. Heene is a real heavyweight, while Delaney has constantly to pad himself to get above the light heavyweight limit.

It may be that Gene Tunney is not so dumb, after all. Four months ago, when asked whom he considered the best of a bad lot of heavyweight contenders, the champion replied: "Heene."

LEGION BOYS NEAR CHAMPIONSHIP FLOOR

GODFREY FAVORED TO DEFEAT UZCUDUN IN FIGHT TUESDAY

Los Angeles, Feb. 27. (U.P.)—George Godfrey, giant Pennsylvania negro, today was favored to defeat Paolino Uzcudun, when the two meet in a ten round bout here tomorrow night.

Godfrey said he intended to end the fight "early." "That man won't bound no more after I lay hold of him," the huge negro said between jabs at a punching bag.

Paolino, through interpreters, also expressed confidence.

He said he would rely on body punches to win.

They will weigh in tomorrow afternoon. Godfrey expects to scale 240 pounds and Paolino 195.
